Hobbies

Drawing

Art has always been very important to me. I began doing it as a child, and I've gotten much better over the years. Here are some of my pieces of art:

Video games

Playing video games is a fantastic way to kill time unwind. I don't play games to compete, but only for fun and enjoyment.

Roller skating

I have developed a deep affection for roller skating, a relatively new pastime. It's a progress frequently occurs following numerous

Like and Dislike

1.Meat: My favourite food in the world. I could eat it every day!

1.Working on holidays: It ruins not just the day but often the entire week.

2.Sleeping during rain: The soothing sound of rain makes for the perfect nap.

2.Diet food: Eating diet food makes me feel like a goat grazing on grass.

3.Holidays: A time to relax, enjoy good food, and indulge in doing absolutely.

3.Rudeness: I strongly dislike encountering rude behavior from people.

Travel

France; the land of art, is a destination I dream of visiting for its incredible museums. Although some of the art pieces were acquired controversially, its cultural richness is unparalleled.

Japan; As a hub for manga and anime art, Japan is another place I'd love to explore. Learning about the creative processes behind their art would be an incredible experience.

Switzerland; is on my list for one main reason: its world-famous, delicious chocolates.

Dreams

Like many others, I aspire to be financially independent, retire by the age of fifty, and give my family a good existence. But my goal is more than just financial security.

Without the limitations of daily job, I want to build a life where I can have greater flexibility, spend time with loved ones, and follow my passions. I hope to see destinations I've always wanted to see, learn about other cultures, and acquire experiences that will broaden my horizons and improve my quality of life. Being financially independent will enable me to contribute to worthwhile projects, educate others, or support causes close to my heart. Essentially, my goal is to use my riches to build a healthy, satisfying life rather than merely accumulating it.

Foreign language

Since English is regarded as a necessary language in many African nations, it was the first foreign language I learnt. It is the language I am most fluent in, though I am still working toward mastery.

In my early school years, French became my second foreign language. At first, I didn't realize how important learning a second language was. But I went on to study French in high school and received an A1 certification.

I learned Arabic by accident, mostly as a result of my childhood fascination with Arabic cartoon films. I hope to become proficient in it in the future.

Skill

Typing

Using a variety of internet resources, I have improved my typing abilities. My accuracy and efficiency when working on digital activities have increased as a result of this.

communication

Both personal and professional contexts require effective communication. In order to promote stronger bonds and teamwork, I'm always trying to get better at this ability.

Education

elementary school

I started my education at Foundation of Knowledge School and continued there through the sixth grade.

high school

After that, I moved to Mission School, where I graduated with honours and exceptional performance from both elementary and high school.

University

I was a third-year student at Addis Ababa University (AAU) studying software engineering at the time I created this portfolio. In the first semester of my third year, I created this portfolio as a component of a Web Programming project.

Projects

Workplace

For many people, including myself, Google is the ideal place to work. Distinguished by its outstanding work culture and high levels of employee satisfaction, it is the ultimate objective I work toward with commitment and diligence.

Because Microsoft provides a welcoming and diverse workplace, it's a great opportunity for me to grow professionally and improve my knowledge in addition to advancing in my industry.

The main reasons Netflix appeals to me are its creative culture and competitive compensation. Nonetheless, I intend to conduct a comprehensive investigation into its workplace to make sure it complements my career.

Like many others, I aspire to be financially independent, retire by the age of fifty, and give my family a good existence. But my goal is more than just financial security.

Without the limitations of daily job, I want to build a life where I can have greater flexibility, spend time with loved ones, and follow my passions. I hope to see destinations I've always wanted to see, learn about other cultures, and acquire experiences that will broaden my horizons and improve my quality of life. Being financially independent will enable me to contribute to worthwhile projects, educate others, or support causes close to my heart. Essentially, my goal is to use my riches to build a healthy, satisfying life rather than merely accumulating it.

Foreign language

Since English is regarded as a necessary language in many African nations, it was the first foreign language I learnt. It is the language I am most fluent in, though I am still working toward mastery.

In my early school years, French became my second foreign language. At first, I didn't realize how important learning a second language was. But I went on to study French in high school and received an A1 certification.

I learned Arabic by accident, mostly as a result of my childhood fascination with Arabic cartoon films. I hope to become proficient in it in the future.

Skill

Typing

Using a variety of internet resources, I have improved my typing abilities. My accuracy and efficiency when working on digital activities have increased as a result of this.

Both personal and professional contexts require effective communication. In order to promote stronger bonds and teamwork, I'm always trying to get better at this ability.

Projects

Workplace

For many people, including myself, Google is the ideal place to work. Distinguished by its outstanding work culture and very high levels of employee satisfaction, it is the ultimate objective I work toward with commitment and diligence.

Because Microsoft provides a welcoming and diverse workplace, it's a great opportunity for me to grow professionally and improve my knowledge in addition to advancing in my industry.

The main reasons Netflix appeals to me are its creative culture and competitive compensation. Nonetheless, I intend to conduct a comprehensive investigation into its workplace to make sure it complements my career.
